

Bio - François Simard

François Simard

Advisor on Fisheries and Maritime Affairs
IUCN Centre for Mediterranean Cooperation
Parque Tecnológico de Andalucía
Calle Maria Curie, 35
Sede Social, Campanillas
29590 Malaga
Espagne
Tel: ++34 952 028 430
Fax: ++34 952 028 145
Email: francois.simard@iucn.org

François Simard works from the IUCN's regional Centre for Mediterranean Cooperation located in Malaga, Spain. As Advisor on Fisheries and Maritime Affairs to the Global Marine Programme, he works on a broad range of issues including marine protected areas, governance, fisheries and aquaculture. After completing his master degree in marine ecology and aquaculture, he moved to Japan where he worked as a guest researcher at the Tokyo University of Fisheries. He lived in Japan for 8 years, working both at the University and with the French Embassy. He has travelled extensively around Japan and East Asia, studying small-scale traditional fisheries and their management. Since François moved back to Europe, he worked with the Oceanographic Museum of Monaco as deputy director for 12 years. Member of WCPA from the late 80s, he started working with the IUCN Global Marine Programme in March 2003.