Based in Lisboa, Portugal.

Catarina is the Marine Red List Officer at Oceanário de Lisboa in Portugal, where she works as part of the SSC Red List Partnerships team. She started her career focusing on cetacean ecology and moving to marine conservation after obtaining an MSc in Conservation Science from Imperial College London.

Catarina is working on the assessment of species held in aquarium collections to improve conservation actions for these species, as well as working with IUCN’s Marine Biodiversity Unit on the Global Marine Species Assessment project.
